

Hull, Quebec
E.B. Eddy Digester Tower
Laurier Park

FHBRO 83-62

HERITAGE CHARACTER STATEMENT

In 1901 the E.B. Eddy Company erected a square, five-storey limestone tower to house its newly designed digester, the top of the north and south walls are adorned with parapets which become stone brackets at the ends. The tower is an example of industrial architecture geared to a specific production process. This building, the remains of a larger complex, has a strong historical association with the development of the pulp and paper industry both in Canada and in the Hull area. The digester tower is in itself a recognizable landmark, in some way symbolic of Mr. E.B. Eddy's industrial success on the national scene, in as much as he was declared a person of national historic significance by the Historic sites and Monuments Board of Canada.
